Synopsis Short (100-200 words)

As 3-year-old Emilio is ready to start school, his family finds itself cornered in the United States' most discriminatory education system - New York City public schools. Fighting for their right to an inclusive education, they investigate personal and inspiring stories that expose injustices against children with disabilities, a reality for more than 93 million children worldwide and nearly half of them are not in school. Forget Me Not reveals a path to a more inclusive society that starts by having diversity in the classroom.
